Qualifications for Admission to the Examination for Registration to Practice Before the Patent and Trademark Office

37 CFR 1.341(c) provides in pertinent part, "No person will be admitted to practice and registered unless he shall . . . establish to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that he is of good moral character and good repute and  possessed of the legal and scientific and technical qualifications necessary to enable him to render applicants for patents valuable service . In order that the Commissioner may determine whether the person  has the qualifications specified, satisfactory proof of good moral character and repute, and of sufficient basic training in scientific and technical matters must be submitted ***."

All persons requesting application forms are routinely furnished with a circular entitled "General Requirements For Admission To The Examination For Registration To Practice Before The Patent and Trademark Office". The circular contains a list of the subjects in which a person must have a bachelor's degree or the equivalency thereof in scientific and technical training to meet registration qualifications. It is strongly recommended that persons who do not have a bachelor's degree in one of those subjects comply with the instructions in the paragraph following the list to show their scientific and technical qualifications. If it is intended to rely on courses in computer science, no more than 3 semester hours of courses in computer programming will be accepted as providing part of the required basic training in scientific and technical matters. Computer science courses oriented away from the physical sciences or engineering, e.g., toward accounting or business, will not be accepted as providing any of the requisite basic training in scientific and technical matters.

Many applications for admission to an examination are filed on or just prior to the announced closing date for doing so, and these applications are frequently disapproved because the person does not furnish a satisfactory showing of his or her qualifications. For instance, persons with a bachelor's degree in a subject other than one of those listed in the circular frequently do not follow instructions in the circular and do not furnish both their transcripts and official course descriptions. Other persons list charges brought against them requiring further showings to overcome doubts raised by the charges about their character and reputation. Still others who failed one section of the examination three times do not furnish a satisfactory showing of sufficient additional legal training to pass the examination.

The Office of Enrollment and Discipline evaluates each application for admission to the examination on an individual basis as soon as practical after receipt in that office. Thereafter, notification is promptly mailed to each person whose application has been disapproved.

The Office of Personnel Management (OPM — formerly Civil Service Commission), which administers the examination, requires that it receive correct data from the Patent and Trademark Office identifying the locale of the examination and the number of persons to be tested well ahead of the examination date. To afford adequate time to present a satisfactory supplemental showing to gain admission to the examination for which application is being made, it is recommended that all persons file their applications early, preferably at least two months before the closing date.

All supplemental showings of qualifications and all applications filed after the announced closing date to apply for admission to an examination will be considered only in connection with the person's admission to the next succeeding examination. Admission to an examination given on a particular date is available only to persons who have filed a completed application form, a $75.00 admission fee, and a satisfactory showing of qualifications on or before the closing date for applying for admission to the examination. Examinations are given in Apr. and Oct. each year, and the respective closing dates for applying for admission to the examinations are the preceding Jan. 31 and July 31.

Reference Collections of U.S. Patents Available for Public Use in Patent Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent Depository Libraries, receive current issues of U.S. Patents and maintain collections of earlier issued patents. The scope of these collections varies from library to library, ranging from patents of only recent years to all or most of the patents issued since 1790.

These patent collections are open to public use and each of the Patent Depository Libraries, in addition, offers the publications of the U.S. Patent Classification System (e.g. The Manual of Classification, Index to the U.S. Patent Classification, Classification Definitions, etc.) and provides technical staff assistance in their use to aid the public in gaining effective access to information contained in patents. With one exception, as noted in the table following, the collections are organized in patent number sequence.

Facilities for making paper copies from either microfilm in reader-printers or from the bound volumes in paper-to-paper copies are generally provided for a fee.

Owing to variations in the scope of patent collections among the Patent Depository Libraries and in their hours of service to the public, anyone contemplating use of the patents at a particular library is advised to contact that library, in advance, about its collection and hours, so as to avert possible inconvenience.
